

ZETOVSKOTO

This is a dance from western Macedonia, danced by the Mijak population of villages such as Gari. It can be danced on all occasions, but is apparently led by the groom ("zet") during a wedding.

Time: The dance is in a 5/8 rhythm: ♩ ♩ ♩ . At the beginning, there are two hesitations inserted in the music. If we indicate these hesitations by "♩", then at the beginning the rhythm would be written ♩ ♩ ♩ ♩ ♩ . As the music becomes faster, the extra hesitations disappear, and the music becomes a straight five: ♩ ♩ ♩ . We will indicate the beats as follows:

Slow part:

Fast part:

Beat number:

1 2 3 4 5

Open circle of men. Hands on shoulders. Face center or slightly right of center.

Measure	Beat
I	1	Step on R foot to R, in RLOD.
	3	Čukče on R as free L is brought across in front of R
	5	Step L across in front of R (RLOD).
II		Repeat I
III		Repeat I
IV	1	Step on R foot to R (RLOD).
	3	Čukče on R - free L is raised forward, bent at knee.
	5	Čukče on R.
V-VIII		Reverse footwork and movement of I-IV.
IX		Same as IV.
X		Same as IX, but reverse footwork and movement.

VARIATION

IX 1 Squat on both feet.

 3 Rise on right foot - L is raised forward, bent at knee.

X Reverse of IX.

These notes have been written on the basis of my own experience in learning most of these dances from Pece at his summer institute at Oteševo in 1971 and 1972, and on the basis of many hours of discussion between us. However, Sitna Lissa, Zetovskoto, and Kavadarka are dances which I have never done, nor seen done to music, and are written up on the basis of demonstrations by Pece. For this reason, inaccuracies are particularly likely to exist in these dances.

I have attempted to make these notes conform as much as possible to the way in which Pece has danced and taught these dances, but of course there is bound to be some personal interpretation on my part as well.

Although I have attempted to make these notes quite complete, it must be remembered that THESE NOTES ARE INTENDED ONLY TO REFRESH THE MEMORY OF SOMEONE WHO HAS ALREADY LEARNED THE DANCE. It is near impossible to make the notes so complete that a person may read them and do the dance correctly without ever having seen it done, and I strongly advise against any attempt to use them this way.

As to their accuracy: If you see Pece do a dance slightly differently from what is written here, it may be that there is a mistake in the notes. But it may also be that Pece has done it differently that time. This is not to say that Pece makes many changes in the dance each time he does it. He is, in fact, very consistent in his dancing. However, there are some folk dancers who worry about precisely how many inches a foot is lifted from the ground, and so on. The actual truth is that given ten villagers from a village, all of whom know the dance well, each would dance slightly differently, and the differences among them would be quite considerable and quite visible. It should be no wonder if Pece dances slightly differently from some other person you meet who knows the dance, or even if he dances the same dance differently at different times. His style will vary slightly with his mood: for instance, faster music and exuberance may tend to produce a slight "čukče" as a grace note to a step on the other foot.

Despite the above warnings, I have gone into great detail in these dance descriptions, and in order to make for easier reading, I have often written the basic step on the left, with the details in brackets to the right. It should thus be equally possible to just skim through the basic steps or to recall a fine point.

I hope that the notes will be useful, and will gladly receive your comments, corrections or criticisms.

DEFINITIONS OF SOME TERMS

A "čukče" on the R foot: with weight on the R foot, lift the R heel off the ground before the beat. Then, on the beat, come down on this heel.

"RLOD" means "right line of direction" - i.e.: around the circumference of the circle towards the right. "LLOD" means the same to the left.

In contrast, "forward" or "backward" makes reference to the direction you are facing, not the line of direction.

A notation such as "3+" means halfway between beat 3 and beat 4. Similarly, "3++" means three-quarters of the way from beat 3 to beat 4.

"Bloop-bloop" (accent on the second "bloop") applied to two steps indicates that the first step takes place just before the beat, and the second step on the beat. For instance, on beats 3++ and 4.
